- The College is subject to the UK economy and we would expect fees to rise each year by between 3% and 5%. This rise will be applicable to new and continuing students.
- Payment of fees for all courses of 12 weeks or less in duration are due in full prior to the commencement of study.
- Payment of fees for courses over 12 weeks in duration can be made in several instalments but must be cleared before the end of that course of study. See payment terms specific to the course for more details.

MA programmes

MLM courses: MA in Contemporary Missiology, MA in Global Leadership in Intercultural Contexts and MA in Member Care

- Students typically pay the tuition costs for their programme in four instalments of 25% of the full cost, alongside the Mode of Delivery costs associated with each of their four taught modules.
- Payment is to be made no later than the commencement of each period of study. For example, those taking two modules during the Summer School would pay 50% of their total tuition fee before the start of the Summer School.
- In exceptional circumstances, fees may be paid in regular instalments, agreed by prior arrangement with Redcliffe College.
- Students continuing their MA into the second academic year of study will be charged tuition at the rate quoted at the start of their course. No guarantees can be made for those taking longer to complete the taught modules; in such circumstances the student will be charged tuition at the rate current to the academic year in which the modules are taken.
- Students who have to suspend their studies for personal reasons will pay the tuition rate that is applicable at the recommencement of their studies.

CLTL courses: MA in Field Linguistics and MA in Literacy Programme Development

- Fees are payable at the beginning of each course of study i.e. PGCert, PGDip, Dissertation.
- Fees for each course of study are set at the current rate for the academic year in which the student attends the College.
- Students who have to suspend their studies for personal reasons will pay the rate that is applicable at the recommencement of their studies.

Other Associated Fees

- The Academic Administration Fee applies to all validated courses and is payable each year a student is enrolled on the course. This fee is subject to change.
- Students enrolled on postgraduate CLTL courses incur a Maintenance fee associated with each term of study at Redcliffe College. This covers all refreshments, use of the facilities, and Community Lunch provided once per week during term-time.
- Additional fees are applicable associated with the Mode of Delivery an MLM student chooses. These fees cover the non-academic aspects of the programme provided while studying at Redcliffe College. This covers all refreshments; use of the facilities; and any social events, food and/or accommodation provided as part of the programme.

Withdrawal

- You will be liable for the full fees for the course engaged on from the point that you register for your course.
- Fees for the current academic year will be set out at the commencement of study for the current year. Students giving due notice of an intention to withdraw during the year, will generally have fees for subsequent full terms waived by the College, but fees for the current term will be payable in full.
- MA students who are not charged a separate fee for their dissertation will not be eligible for a refund if they decide to exit the MA programme with a postgraduate diploma.
- Students who have to cease studies due to ill health, or other exceptional circumstances agreed with the College, will have fees cancelled from the conclusion of the current term, or course of study (whichever is sooner) provided the intention to withdraw is put in writing to the College prior to this date, and that this intention is accepted by the College.
